Introduction

Why Tiktok

TikTok has revolutionized the online video landscape, setting new benchmarks and breaking numerous world records along the way. For example, achieving one million views on a video was once considered a significant milestone; today, that standard has shifted to 10 million views. Similarly, the platform's rapid growth is exemplified by its top creators, with some surpassing 100 million followers in just a few years—a milestone that took established creators like PewDiePie years of dedicated effort to achieve.

The most liked TikTok – @bellapoarch

Bellapoarch

The title of the most-liked TikTok belongs to Bella Poarch, widely recognized for her viral video set to British artist Millie B's track. Uploaded in the summer of 2020, the video features Poarch effortlessly lip-syncing to the song, showcasing her signature charm and expressions. Since its release, it has skyrocketed in popularity, amassing over 50 million likes and securing its place as a record-breaking TikTok.

The most commented-on TikTok video – @verifiedbean

@Verifiedbean

The TikTok video with the highest number of comments belongs to @verifiedbean. In this viral post, the creator explicitly encourages viewers to help make the video the most-commented on the platform. The strategy proved successful, as the video has garnered an impressive 4.7 million comments, securing its record-breaking status.

The most viewed TikTok – @zachking

@Zachking

Social media powerhouse Zach King holds the TikTok record for the most-viewed video, thanks to his creative Harry Potter-inspired spoof. Known for his exceptional editing skills and mastery of optical illusions, King makes it appear as though he's flying on a broomstick, captivating audiences worldwide. This video has achieved an astonishing 2.1 billion views, cementing its place in TikTok history.

The video's massive reach suggests it is frequently showcased to new users on the platform, further contributing to its record-breaking success.

@Johnofical_2

JFO Star, an American TikTok content creator and musician from Norfolk, Virginia, achieved a Guinness World Record in August 2024 by becoming the first TikTok user to reach 100,000 views within two minutes of posting a video. This accomplishment highlights his significant influence and popularity on the platform.

The most followed female TikToker – @charlidamelio

@Charliedamelio

Charli D'Amelio is undeniably one of TikTok's most prominent creators, with her content appearing on nearly everyone's For You Page at some point. Boasting just under 120 million followers, she holds the title of the most-followed female TikToker by a significant margin, showcasing her immense influence and widespread appeal on the platform.

The most followed male TikToker – @khaby.lame

@Khaby.lame

Khaby Lame's rise to TikTok stardom has been extraordinary. Without uttering a single word in his videos, his unique style and relatable humor have captivated audiences worldwide. Over the past year, his following has grown exponentially, and he currently boasts an impressive 76 million followers, solidifying his place as one of the platform's most influential creators.
